NAME CHECK

In response to your request wherein you requested any data concerning the captioned individual subsequent to July 7, 1953, enclosed are four reports entitled "Louis Lorenzo Redding, wa., Security Matter - C" who appears to be the brother of the subject of your inquiry. In addition enclosed is one report entitled "Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., Internal Security-C" which contains information relative to the captioned individual.

An article appeared in the New York Times newspaper dated March 20, 1961, captioned "250 Teachers Hit House Committee." This article revealed the American Civil Liberties Union made public on March 19, 1961, a statement by 250 college and university professors urging the abolition of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. The article revealed the statement asserted that the committee had "repeatedly undermined the freedoms essential for national well-being" also that the committee had been "unrelenting in its harassing of teachers" in its 24-year period.

Among the names of professors appearing in this article was that of one "J. Saunders Redding, Hampton Institute," further unidentified. (100-433447-A)

In a publication entitled "Freedomways, A Quarterly Review of the Negro Freedom Movement, Vol.2, No.2, dated Spring, 1962," on page 161 appeared an article entitled "Dubois' Masterpiece Lives On, A New Introduction by Saunders Redding" who appears to be identical with the captioned individual. This article by Mr. Redding praises the book of W. E. B. Dubois' "The Souls of Black Folk." You may desire to review this article for any pertinent information of interest to your agency.

AUTHORITY TO TEACH AT GW

Negro Culture Gets a Push

By ERNEST HOLSENDOLPH
Star Staff Writer

George Washington University will respond this fall to student demands for more courses in black literature and history by hiring one of the nation's top experts on Negro culture.

Jay Saunders Redding, for years a teacher at Hampton Institute and other colleges, has accepted a professorship of American history and civilization at George Washington. President Lloyd H. Elliott will officially announce tomorrow.

Now a director of research for the National Endowment for the Humanities, Redding will be on leave at George Washington this fall, but will begin teaching in January.

He is the author of several books on the Negro and has taught at Hampton, Grinnell College, Brown University and in Africa. He served as a fellow in the Cooperative Program in the Humanities at Duke and the University of North Carolina in the 1964-65 academic year.

Said Elliott:

"For all of the humanistic departments at the university, Prof. Redding's appointment represents a determination, independent of any particular pressures, to make the academic contribution of George Washington more importantly germane to the concerns of Washington.

"In this case, the concern is with the development of a field of study, at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, devoted to the meaningful identification of a continuing Negro culture in the United States."

In an interview, Redding said he hopes to "wrap into the factual substance of American life, materials and ideas about the Afro-American, the black American."

He said he generally opposes courses devoted only to Negro studies, preferring to stress "Afro-American life as a component of and catalyst for American literature and culture."

Star Photographer Joseph Silverman

DR. JAY SAUNDERS REDDING

When teaching biography, for instance, Redding said it is "shameful" not to include the autobiographical material of Frederick Douglass, Booker T. Washington, W. E. B. DuBois and Malcolm X.

"If Malcolm and black extremists can't be seen as part of the contemporary revolution, then they are being misread," Redding said. "Some people in our society don't want to make this connection, preferring to see Negroes merely as disturbers of the peace who lack respect for the law."

Redding said he was "much disturbed" by speakers at the Republican convention last week and their implicit identification of Negroes with lawlessness.

Asked if he believes wider knowledge about the Negro will eliminate race prejudice, Redding said:

"I know that knowledge has changed some of my ideas. As a product of American public schools, I was taught, for instance, that Africa is populated by savages and that it was a place no one wanted to visit. I have visited and studied Africa and I recognize the false image for what it is."

Redding said there is a "conscious effort in America to magnify and demigrate black accomplishments."

He added: "The complaint that we have been deprived and robbed of our past is valid — and in the process of depriving others, whites have robbed themselves."

There are limits to the extent to which knowledge will change minds, however, Redding said. He cited efforts by DuBois, who produced his "Atlanta studies" at the turn of the century in an effort to disseminate knowledge about Negroes, only to give up in frustration.

Last spring George Washington students demanded that more courses in Negro history and arts be taught at the school, that efforts be made to upgrade Negro employees of the university and that the school develop closer ties to the surrounding community.

The "Evening Star" of August 13th carried a story identifying Dr. Jay Saunders Redding, an authority on Negro culture, as having accepted a professorship of American History and Civilization at the George Washington (GW) University and he will begin teaching in January. GW stated that Professor Redding's appointment represents a determination to make the academic contribution of GW more importantly germane to the concerns of Washington. He stated that the concern is with the development of a field of study devoted to the meaningful identification of a continuing Negro culture in the United States. Be

Dr. Redding, in an interview about the Afro-American and the Black American, stated that it is "shameful," when teaching biography, not to include the autobiographical material of certain prominent Negroes, including Booker T. Washington, W. E. B. DuBois and Malcolm X. Redding also stated that he was disturbed about speakers at the Republican Convention last week and their implicit identification of Negroes with lawlessness.

The article also pointed out that last spring GW students demanded that more courses in Negro history and arts be taught at the school, that efforts be made to upgrade Negro employees of the university and that the school develop closer ties to the surrounding community. b6

CRIME RESEARCH

M. A. Jones to Mr. Bishop Memo
RE: DR. JAY SAUNDERS REDDING

In 1953 Redding was the subject of a Special Inquiry investigation in connection with his position with the Voice of America. That investigation revealed that a fellow employee at Hampton Institute considered Redding a poor choice as she felt his writings reflected bitterness about the plight of the Negroes in this country. The name of Jay Saunders Redding, according to Bureau files and other sources, including the House Committee on Un-American Activities (HCUA), was linked with several procommunist organizations and publications. He was listed as a sponsor in 1950 of an affair coordinated by the Southern Conference Educational Fund cited by the HCUA. He was listed as one of the prominent leaders who commented favorably on the book "We Charge Genocide," by William L. Patterson, National Executive Secretary, Civil Rights Congress, cited pursuant to Executive Order 10450.

In the 1953 investigation it was determined that Redding had listed several references who had been affiliated with a number of cited organizations. Most of the individuals interviewed concerning Redding considered him loyal and patriotic.

~~Louis Lorenzo Redding~~, the brother of Jay Saunders Redding, has been the subject of security-type inquiries by the Bureau since 1941. He reportedly was the legal advisor for the Communist Party in Wilmington, Delaware, during the 1920's and allegedly associated with and furnished legal representation to Communist Party (CP) members in Wilmington over a period of years. When interviewed by the Bureau in October, 1953, Louis Redding denied having ever been a member of or legal advisor to the CP.

Misc NLG V. AG

but denied membership in the National Negro Congress (cited pursuant to Executive Order 10450) and denied having read or signed articles appearing in the "Daily Worker." Louis Redding has maintained his association with a number of communist-dominated organizations through at least 1962. The security case on Louis Redding has been closed since 1964.

Dear Mr. Maxwell:

This is in reference to your April 6, 2007, Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) for information regarding J. Saunders Redding. The FBI forwarded documents that originated with the Civil Service Commission for our review and release to you.

The enclosed documents have been reviewed pursuant to the provisions of the FOIA. We have deleted information that is exempt from disclosure pursuant to title 5, United States Code, sections 552(b)(6), (b)(7)(C), and (b)(7)(D). Sections (b)(6) and (b)(7)(C) exempt information that could reasonably be expected to constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Section (b)(7)(D) exempts information that could reasonably be expected to disclose the identity of a confidential source.

If you wish to appeal these deletions, you may do so by submitting a request to the Office of the General Counsel, Office of Personnel Management, 1900 E Street, NW, Washington, DC 20415-0001. An appeal should include a copy of your request, a copy of this letter, and a statement explaining why you believe the decision is in error. The appeal should also include "FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT APPEAL" in capital letters on the envelope and at the top of the letter of appeal.

If you have any questions regarding this response, contact the Freedom of Information Privacy Act Branch at 724-794-5612, extension 7000. Please reference tracking number 2008-12920.

The Daily Worker of May 27, 1941, pages 1 and 5, contained an article and a statement with a list of the initiating group and signers, captioned "160 Negro Leaders Condemn Drive to War and Destruction of Our People's Rights."

The following excerpts are quoted from the statement:

"The Negro people cannot avoid the conclusion that the war drive and the denial and destruction of democratic rights go to-gether. It is impossible for us to see how democracy can be really defended when such evils plague the thirteen million black Americans within our country. It is impossible for us to see how a program of 'National Defense' can become a reality when in the very process, constitutional liberties are denied such a large segment of the population. Such is our situation here at home."

"The Negro people want nothing of Hitler; they detest him and all his practices. On the other hand the British war-makers hold Africa, India, the West Indies and other colonial areas in a cruel bondage, often infinitely worse than the oppression known by Negroes in America."

"Along with our fellow Americans, we Negroes must see clearly through the fog of deception in the propaganda of press, radio and other forces. Our choice must be single and firm; We want democracy with equality in jobs, in our political life, and in the social institutions of our country, and we want peace in which to achieve these basic human rights."

, is included in a list of signers of the statement.

The listed signers of the statement include, among others:

of the Commission, and it may be recalled at any time.

Pages 223-225, of the report, dated July 2, 1952, of the Committee on the Judiciary (Senate) Eighty-Second Congress, Second Session, hearings held July 25, 1951-June 20, 1952, by the Internal Security Subcommittee, reflects the following conclusions, concerning the Institute of Pacific Relations:

"The Institute of Pacific Relations has not maintained the character of an objective scholarly and research organization.

"The IPR has been considered by the American Communist Party and by Soviet officials as an instrument of Communist policy, propaganda and military intelligence.

"The IPR disseminated and sought to popularize false information including information originating from Soviet and Communist sources.

"A small core of officials and staff members carried the main burden of IPR activities and directed its administration and policies.

"Members of the small core of officials and staff members who controlled IPR were either Communist or were Communist sympathizers. This report may be transferred to another agency without prior approval of the Commission, and it may be recalled at any time.

"There is no evidence that the large majority of its members supported the IPR for any reason except to advance the professed research and scholarly purposes of the organization.

"Most members of the IPR, and most members of its Board of Trustees, were inactive and obviously without any influence over the policies of the organization and the conduct of its affairs.

"IPR activities were made possible largely through the financial support of American industrialists, corporations, and foundations, the majority of whom were not familiar with the inner workings of the organization.

"The effective leadership of the IPR often sought to deceive IPR contributors and supporters as the true character and activities of the organizations.

"Neither the IPR nor any substantial body of those associated with it as executive officers, trustees or major financial contributors has ever made any serious and objective investigation of the charges that the IPR was infiltrated by Communists and was used for pro-Communist and pro-Soviet purposes.

"The names of eminent individuals were by design used as a respectable and impressive screen for the activities of the IPR inner core, and as a defense when such activities came under scrutiny.

"After the establishment of the Soviet Council of IPR, leaders of the American IPR sought and maintained working relationships with Soviet diplomats and officials.

"The American staff of IPR, though fully apprised that the Soviet Council of IPR was in fact an arm of the Soviet Foreign Office, was simultaneously and secretly instructed to preserve the 'fiction' that the Soviet council was independent.

"The effective leadership of IPR worked consistently to set up actively cooperative and confidential relationships with persons in Government involved in the determination of foreign policy.

"Over a period of years was the principal fulcrum of IPR pressures and influence in the State Department.

"It was the continued practice of IPR to seek to place in Government posts both persons associated with IPR and other persons selected by the effective leadership of IPR.

"The IPR possessed close organic relations with the State Department through interchange of personnel, attendance of State Department officials at IPR conferences, constant exchange of information and social contacts.

"The effective leadership of the IPR used IPR prestige to promote the interests of the Soviet Union in the United States.

"A group of persons operating within and about the Institute of Pacific Relations exerted a substantial influence on United States far eastern policy.

"The IPR was a vehicle used by the Communist to orientate American far eastern policies toward Communist objectives.

"A group of persons associated with the IPR attempted, between 1941 and 1945, to change United States policy so as to accommodate Communist ends and to set the stage for a major United States policy change, favorable to Soviet interests, in 1945.

and were influential in bringing about a change in United States policy in 1945 favorable to the Chinese Communists.

"During the period 1945-49, persons associated with the Institute of Pacific Relations were instrumental in keeping United States policy on a course favorable to Communist objectives in China.

"Persons associated with the IPR were influential in 1949 in giving United States far eastern policy a direction that furthered Communist purposes.

"A chief function of the IPR has been to influence United States public opinion.

"Many of the persons active in and around the IPR, and in particular Counterattack, a weekly newsletter published by the American Business Consultants Inc., 55 West 42nd St. New York City, N.Y., newsletter #184, dated December 1, 1950, states in part:

"The China Welfare Appeal, Inc., held a conference on Health and Welfare in China, on November 18th. Big attraction at the conference was transcribed message from Madame Sun Yat Sen, an official of the Chinese Communist Government.

"China Welfare Appeal, an agency of Madame Sun Yat Sen's China Welfare Institute (controlled by the Red Government) has been sending 'Friendship Cargoes' containing penicillin, sulfa and other drugs to China, where all 'relief' is politically controlled. A resolution adopted by the appeals board of directors was read at the conference. It protested the recently instituted United States requirement for export licenses for these drugs. Commerce Department, by refusing licenses to the appeal, can now prevent it from giving aid to enemies of the United States."

Elizabeth City State Teachers' College,
Elizabeth City, North Carolina.

I have known Jay S. Redding for about ten years both as a teacher and as a friend. When I came to the College Mr. Redding was the chairman of the English Department. I was fascinated by the man's ability to teach and by his very intelligent approach to problems of all nature. He is one of the most widely read persons that I have ever met.

Since Mr. Redding left here in 1943, I have had contact with him intermittently, and my respect for the man has grown. He is an excellent writer and as a matter of fact, he won the "Mayflower Award" which is a special award for authors of North Carolina, around 1943 with his work "No Day of Triumph." Since that time he has written several other works and his reputation as an author has grown considerably.

During the time that he was on the staff of this Institution, he stayed on the campus and lived on the first floor of Butler. He is a married man with one or two children and he is devoted to his family. The only thing that I have ever heard expressed about this man is his tendency to be very out-spoken. He is the kind of man who is not capable of being two-faced, and he will say whatever he thinks on a given subject without reservation.

During the time that I have known this man, I have found his morals, habits and general character to be beyond reproach. I feel certain that he is a completely loyal American citizen and that he is the kind of a person that will make an excellent security risk. During his stay here, he was not at all active in politics and although I cannot remember any organizations to which he might have belonged, I feel certain that he would be connected with nothing that would be considered questionable. I would, without hesitation, recommend this man for a position of trust in our Federal government as I believe him to be a very competent and responsible person.

Elizabeth City State Teachers' College,
Elizabeth City, North Carolina.

I have known Jay Saunders Redding for about 15 years as a friend and as a co-worker and associated. I haven't seen the man for the past two or three years as he is now up at Hampton, Virginia, and only gets back to visit us upon occasions. He was on our faculty here at the State Teachers' College from 1938, to 1943, and at that time, he was the chairman of our English Department. During this time, I worked very closely with him. He is a very intelligent man and one with whom it is a pleasure to work.

During the time that he was with us, he stayed in the campus quarters that he had. He lived with his wife and their two children, and he is completely devoted to his family. He is the type of man who prefers to travel with a small circle of friends and does not socialize very easily. He prefers to be with those, with whom he has a strong bond of attachment or to be active in his rating.

I have always found this man's morals, habits, and character to be excellent. I have never heard a single thing that might reflect on his reputation and I would say that he is a man of good common sense. I am sure that he is a completely loyal American citizen and a kind of a person that would make a good security risk. During his stay with us, he engaged in no politics and he was never associated with any organizations nor ever affiliated with anyone of a questionable nature. I would certainly recommend this man for a position of trust with the Federal government as I believe him to be a man of great integrity and great ability.

Elizabeth City State
Teachers' College, Elizabeth City, North Carolina.

I knew Jay S. Redding for about five years in the English Department during the time that he was here at the State Teachers' College. If I recall correctly, it would be from about 1938, to 1943 and he was the Chairman of the English Department.

was greatly impressed with his ability to get things done. He employed a very direct approach to everything. He is a very intelligent man and extremely well read. During the time that I knew him we visited many times and his wife was always present. They and their family were living on the campus during the time that they were here. We both traveled in a small group of friends. His group consisted of the other members of the Department, the Dean of the College and a few other people who were interested in the work that we were doing. When he left here, he went to the Hampton Institute up in Virginia and it was definitely a promotion for him. He has done quite a bit of writing and as a matter of fact one time he won the "Mayflower Cup" for one of his works. This award was presented to him just before he left the State Teachers' College and at that time, he had written five or six more books.

I would say that this man's morals, habits, and general character are all above reproach. I have never heard of a single thing that might reflect against him. I have no reason to question at all his complete loyalty to the United States and I feel that he would make a good security risk. I believe that he belonged to a National Honor Society and perhaps a Fraternity but these are the only organizations to which he might have belonged to, that I can remember. He associated with people of good standing and I feel sure that he would not be connected with anything or anyone that would be considered questionable or subversive. I would very definitely recommend this man for a position of trust in the Federal government.

Elizabeth City State Teachers' College,
805 South Avenue, Elizabeth City, South Carolina.

I have known Jay Saunders Redding for about 11 years as a co-worker and as a friend. In the English Department he was the Chairman of the Department

I got to know him very well and he and his family and mine have been very close ever since.

We visit socially frequently. I would say that he is a very brilliant person. He writes a great deal and he works very hard when he starts a project. He won the "Mayflower Award" for work contributed by authors while residents of the State of North Carolina, either in 1942, or 1943, and he has written quite a few new works since that time. He, his wife and son lived on the campus while they were here. He now has two sons and he holds a much better position up at the Hampton Institute in Virginia.

His morals, habits and general character are all completely above reproach. I have never heard anyone say a single thing that might reflect upon his reputation. I cannot remember any organizations to which he might have belonged, outside of the usual professional ones, but he is not a "joiner" by nature, and I do not believe that he would be a dupe for any subversive organization. He would not be connected with anything questionable as this is the center of things that would be in direct conflict with the ideas that he holds. I would say that he is completely loyal to the American government and that he is a solid American citizen. He is the type of a man who would make a good security risk. I would, without hesitation, recommend this man for a position of trust with the Federal government.

INVESTIGATOR'S NOTE: , was present at the above interview and gave the same testimony.

Elizabeth City State Teachers' Department, Elizabeth City, North Carolina.

I knew Jay Saunders Redding for about five years in around 1938, to 1943, as a co-worker. At that time he was the Chairman of the English Department, here at the college. worked on such projects as plays, radio broadcasts, and things of this nature. I must say that his ability to get things done correctly in a short period of time was outstanding. He is very talented. He left here to accept a much better position at Hampton Institute, and all of the board members and students felt that it was a great loss.

During his stay here, I would say that his morals, habits and character were all excellent. He is a happy married man and he is devoted to his wife and family. I cannot remember ever having heard a single soul say a single thing against this man. I do not remember any definite organizations to which he might have belonged but he was never active in politics and I feel sure that he would not be connected with anything questionable. I would say that he is a completely loyal American citizen and I am sure that he would make a good security risk. I very definitely would recommend this man for a position of trust in the Federal government.

Hampton Institute, Hampton, Virginia.

I have known Jay Saunders Redding for eight years as a co-worker. Mr. Redding came to the University in 1943, as an English teacher.

I see from the personnel records which we keep on all of the members of our board that his date of birth is shown as October 13, 1906, and his place of birth indicated as Wilmington, Delaware. Mr. Redding shows his home address as 203 East 10th St., Wilmington, Delaware. During the time that I have known Mr. Redding, our relationship has been both business-wise and personal. In both theatres of activity, I have found his conduct to be completely satisfactory. He is a very talented individual and has a great intellect. As you probably know, he won the "Mayflower Award" back in 1942, or 1943, and since that time he has written five or six very successful works. He also has written many articles and essays.

In my opinion, Mr. Redding's morals, habits, and character are completely above reproach. He is honest and has as much integrity as any person that I have ever known. As you probably know, he has just recently returned from a trip to India last summer and if my information is correct, it was a special culture mission for the State Department. He has also been lecturer sent out by the American Friends Service Committee through out the New England States. The purpose of this program as I understand it, is to send certain teachers who have a knowledge of a given subject to different colleges to orient the students to the nature of a problem and a possible solution.

During the time that I have known this man, I have never heard a single thing which might reflect unfavorably on his reputation. He is not active in politics and has no knowledge of organizations outside of the usual professional and fraternal organizations. I know the man personally and have read all of his works and I am certain that there is no chance that this man could embrace any ideas contrary to our American way of life. He is a completely loyal American citizen and the kind of man who would make a good security risk. I would very definitely recommend him for a position of trust with the Federal government.

Hampton Institute, Hampton, Virginia.

I have known Jay Saunders Redding for ten years as a co-worker and as a friend.

(b)(7)(D)

He is a gentleman and a scholar in all respects. During the time that I have known him, we have had frequent social contacts and I am friendly with his wife and two sons as well as with him. He came from Wilmington, Delaware and if my memory serves me correctly, he went to Brown University in Rhode Island, and I believe also attended Columbia University in New York. Of course he is an accomplished writer and as you probably know, taught at Elizabeth City, North Carolina, before coming here. He is a retiring sort of a person and associates with a small group of close friends here on the campus. I would say that his morals, habits and general character are all excellent.

I believe that he is a member of a major national fraternity, but avoids the meetings and he is not very active in this field. He is very devoted to his wife and family and his entire personality does not include joining any sort of an organization. I feel certain that he never would be connected with anything considered questionable or affiliated with anyone that might embrace foreign ideologies and I am certain that he is a completely loyal American citizen. I think that he would make a good security risk and that he would be excellent for a position of trust and responsibility in our Federal government, and I recommend him as such.

Hampton Institute, Hampton,
Virginia.

I have known Jay Saunders Redding as a friend and co-worker for the past nine years. He joined out board after coming from Elizabeth City State Teachers' College in North Carolina and he has always conducted himself as a gentleman. I have found him to be a man of great integrity and one who is completely trustworthy. He is married with two sons and is respected by one and all here on the campus. As you probably know he is a well known author and has written five or six major works as well as many essays and critical reports for publication.

During the time that I have known this man, I have found that his morals, habits and character to be completely above reproach. As a matter of fact, I have never even heard a single thing that might reflect unfavorably on his reputation. I have no knowledge of any organizations to which he might belong with the exception of his fraternity and perhaps a professional organization but I feel certain that he would not be connected with anything that is considered questionable. I think that he is a completely loyal American citizen and I feel sure that he would make a good security risk. I would very definitely recommend him for a position of trust with the Federal government.

Hampton Institute,
Hampton, Virginia.

I have known Jay Reddings for the past 22 years. I first met the man when he was teaching at Moorehead College in Atlanta, Georgia.

I would approximate this to be back in 1929 through 1931. If my information is correct he taught at several schools before going to Elizabeth State Teachers' College in the latter part of 1930. He stayed there for about five years and came here to Hampton in 1943, or perhaps 1944.

our relationship has always been good with exception of two minor complaints.

I would say before I list my complaints that this man is exceptionally well-trained and has a fine mind. He is very able person and gets along well with the other members of the staff. The only thing that I can complain about is his tendency to sacrifice his teaching for his writing and the fact that I consider him to be overly sensitive and emotional. With the reference to the former, his allowing student workers to grade Freshman themes and examinations. This is not the usual practice. This condition has since been corrected. The only reason that he did this was to allow himself more time for his writing. When he becomes absorbed in a piece of writing, he has a tendency to allow the more menial tasks of his teaching responsibilities to slip a little. My other critical comment is that he has not reached an emotional maturity which I would expect from such an intelligent individual. He is very proud and extremely sensitive and is liable to take offense at a general statement made by someone and feel that it was directed to him personally. I consider these two complaints which I have made to be of a very minor nature however.

He is a married man with two sons and extremely devoted to his family. He travels in a very small group of friends and I feel sure that his morals, habits and general character are all above reproach. He is the type of a person who does not enjoy crowds or organizations and while I think that he is a member of a national society and perhaps a fraternity, he is not active in either and has never been active in anything of a political nature. He associates with people of fine reputation and I am sure that he would never affiliate with anyone who would embrace an ideology, foreign to our way of life. He is a completely loyal American and I feel sure that he would make a good security risk. I would, without hesitation, recommend this man for a position of trust with the Federal government.

Hampton Institute, Hampton,

Virginia.

I have known Jay Saunders Redding for three years as a co-worker and as a associate.

He is an extremely able man and very through and complete in his thinking, writing, and in his way of life. He is meticulous in his dress and very punctual at all times. Actually he is a very shy retiring sort of a man and it took me about six months before we actually became friendly. Even at this, I have never felt as though I have completely gained his confidence. He is devoted to his writing and works steadily and painstakingly to produce his efforts.

He is what I would consider to be an introvert insofar as he prefers to be alone with his work or in the company of a small select group of good friends. He is married with two sons and is a very responsible family man. He doesn't have much to do with board committees and this sort of thing as he prefers a smaller group to this sort of thing.

I would say that his morals, habits, and character leave nothing to be desired. I believe that he is a member of very few organizations with the exception of a national honor society and one fraternity. He is not at all active in politics and definitely not the type of a person who could embrace an ideology contrary to the American way of life. I would say that he is a loyal citizen and that he would be a good security risk. I would definitely recommend this man for a position of trust in the Federal government.

Virginia. (Hampton Institute).

Hampton,

I have known Jay Saunders Redding for eight or nine years as a colleague and for much longer than this by reputation. I will say at the outset that I consider him to be first among all of my acquaintances and one of the finest men that I have ever known. He is a gentleman and scholar in every respect. I personally am very much impressed with his thoughts and his insight into the human problems. He is gifted in working with the problems of people. He is a very able man and of course has written five or six major works as well as contributed many articles to various publications.

I would say that his morals habits and character are all above reproach. I believe that he belongs to the usual organizations but is not active in any of these and confers a small circle of friends. He is definitely not the "joiner" type and I am certain that he would be all right as I feel that he is not connected with of the questionable organizations. He, as a member of a minority group, has spoken out against practices in geographical localities in this country but he definitely feels that all hopes for improving these conditions lies within the Democratic frame work of the government of the United States. He is a bitter enemy of those who protest that a different ideology with this matter would better solve the problems of his race. He is a responsible individual and would make a good security risk and I would very definitely recommend him for a position of trust with the Federal government.

I have known Jay S. Redding for the past seven years as a friend.

I was greatly impressed with his intellect and with his knowledge of the subject.

I have become socially acquainted with Redding and his family in the past four or five years.

He is extremely nice and a dignified man in every respect. I would say that he is a true gentleman and a scholar. He is very interested in his writing and a very hard worker. He travels in a small circle of good friends and is very devoted to his wife and two sons.

During the time that I have known him, I would say that his morals, habits and general character leave nothing to be desired. I have never heard a single thing said by anyone that might reflect unfavorably upon his reputation. I believe that he is a member of a national honor society and perhaps a fraternity but he is definitely not active in these. He doesn't seem to care to take part in group activities. I would say that he is a completely loyal American citizen and would not be connected with any questionable organizations or groups. I think that he would make a good security risk and I would definitely recommend him for a position of trust in our Federal government.

I have known Jay Saunders Redding for the past 12 years as a friend and as a co-worker. he was teaching at the Elizabeth City State Teachers' College in Elizabeth City, North Carolina. At that time he was giving a series of talks at several colleges

I have developed a friendship with the man.

on a text book and I must say that he did a very good job. This is not the kind of writing for which he has become famous, but he had a contract offered to him by a major publishing house

Although his major field is creative writing, and essays, he worked very hard to complete book on Rhetoric Readings, and Exercises.

During the time that I have known this man I have never had the smallest reason to question his morals, habits or general character. As a matter of fact, I have never heard anyone say a single thing that might reflect on his reputation, he is a married man with two sons and he is devoted to his family. I have no knowledge of any organizations to which he might belong but feel sure that he associates with only the higher class of people and feel equally sure that he would not be connected with anything or anyone considered questionable. I have no doubt whatsoever as to his complete loyalty to the United States government and I feel sure that he would make a good security risk. I very definitely would recommend him for a position of trust with the Federal government.
